Dear Glen,

This letter is long time overdue. Please accept my sincere apology for that. I meant to do that long time ago.

Investing to prepare a better financial security is not an easy task when your time is all consumed by work and overseas travel. Spotting the good opportunity is even less easy. It was with mixed hope that day I took your business card on a counter of my accountant.

Anything that deals with money is the difficult place to be as the press, the television and co-workers are witness of more bad stories than good ones. So far my only investment was that little 1 bedroom in Drummoyne.

It must also be difficult for you to work against general rumours such as these. And this is the main reason of that Thank You Letter. I hope it will be read by many hesitant people, as I was. Being in computers I am ok with numbers.

Numbers were adding up fine. The unknown was to have an idea and to receive good recommendations for investing and start saving money, before having the investment. I want to talk about your constant advice to avoid features that are not necessary in an investment property however they may be for our own living style reference. This is so important. It is the little savings made one after another that creates the big margins in the end. Thank you for that. Very good advice again.

The other problematic part was to accommodate our agendas. I must say, you have truly made a remarkable impression by being so available even on the phone or via email as soon as questions were coming up to me.

You CAN truly find real nice opportunity. I have now a co-worker that asked me for your references and contacts.

For all the above, thank you, and we will do business again.

Very Best regards

Jean-Louis DiDomenico
